Life Path 4

Life Paths show us our talents and our inner strengths

When we look at the picture, we see a bearded man wearing a crown that sits in a throne that is outside. The chair is decorated with the heads of four rams and in his right hand, he holds a scepter and in the background, we see a path on each side of the chair that leads into the mountain. He is someone that has high standards for himself as well as for those around him. He is the salt of the earth dependable, helpful, and he enjoys people and has close family ties. The two paths that we see in the picture represent choices. When we live our life with our values and structure, we become lazy there is no spark to get us motivated. Values and structures bring meaning to our life. It brings out our aliveness meaning to be a student of life. In building, a good life for ourselves through working for the good of all, brings abundance of all kinds into our life. It establishes balance and allows life to flow through us. It not only teaches us to have control of our life, but it also teaches others through our example.

Life Lesson Card

A skeleton knight in armor sits on a white horse that rides across a body of dead men. In front of the horse, two children that are kneeling and a bishop pleading for their lives. The black flag that a horseman is holding bears the symbol of a rose. In the background, we see a valley with a ship sailing in the river and over the horizon, we see the sun setting between two towers.

Tarot Card 13 doesn't mean death in the physical form as death is not something that happens only once. When we think of death, many of us are uncomfortable with endings. But in reality we do die a little bit every time something comes to a close like a vacation, when the children move away, a gathering of friends or family we are often left with a feeling of emptiness a sense of loss. Most of us find it hard to face this fact that life is always changing, as we must die a little to the old to give birth to the new.

Two of Cups Vowels

The Vowels are our desires, wishes, emotions, that deeper part of who you are it is the part of you that is inside that the world does not see.

The number 2 is about partnership, diplomacy, and love. As we look at the picture, we can see a young man and young woman pledging their love for each other. In the air above them floats the caduceus of Hermes, surrounded by a winged lion head.

The picture gives us a warm feeling as we see the two people gazing into each other's eyes pledging their love in bonding together. The powerful energy between these two people is strong it shows us the beauty that is created when two people get together.

The two of cups can have a deeper meaning our emotions desires in how we feel about ourselves. Many people don't realize that this love, partnership that we see in the picture is also for ourselves. To love ourselves as many of us struggle within our own life situations or our emotions that we find it hard to make peace within ourselves.

The Page of Pentacles

Personality 5

The personality is the part of you that other see this is not the true self nor does it represent how one feels on the inside. Instead is it the outer self it is what you show the world. When we look at the Page of Pentacles, we see a dark haired man standing holding a upright coin as he glazes upon it with admiration. Also in the background, there are trees off in the distance.

The Page of Pentacles is a happy-go-lucky sort of a person that goes through life by living each day to the fullest. He is the most adaptable and versatile of all the other numbers for he lover of variety. He gets bored easily if he stays in one spot too long for he doesn't like to be tied down. He loves life and wants to try his hands at everything at least once. His quick thinking mind makes him an excellent sale person for he can talk others into buying things they don't really need. He fun and witty and always welcome addition to any party or gathering. He is popular and a good talker, he has many interesting stories to share to all that will listen. He is the happiest when he has the freedom to come and go as he pleases.

The King of Pentacles

Whole Name 7

With every birth, a soul is born, and with this soul, there is a name. Every name given at birth contains all the tools and talent that we can use in this lifetime.

When we look at the King of Pentacles, we see a crown man that sit in a massive throne. The chair is decorated with four bull heads. In one hand, he holds a scepter with a globe on the end. In the other hand he holds a coin that rests on his knee and the chair is covered with plants in the background we see towers of a castle.

The king of Pentacles is someone that can put his ideas or dreams into reality for he is not afraid to step forward and try new things in being creative. He has no problem finding opportunities and is successful in what ever he puts his mind to. He has many talents and can draw on his skills when needed some may see him as jack-of-all-trades and a master at all. Others rely on him for support for he is dependable and can be called upon in a crisis. He encourages others to go after their own dreams and helps guide them in the right direction. When helping others he is generous of his time and resources for he has an understanding that by giving generously we receive the same within our own lives.

The Queen of Pentacle

Attitude

The attitude number 3 is about Self-expression, joy

Your attitude is your outlook on life. It is the way you carry yourself when with others.

When we look at the picture, we see a crowned woman sitting out doors. She sits in a throne that on each arm is a head of a goat. In her hands, she holds an upright coin and we can see her glazing down at the coin as if in meditation. The landscape around her is fertile and alive with growth.

The Queen of pentacles is warm and loving. If you went and had tea with her, the first thing she would say it's lovely to see you, have you have lunch yet. She makes you feel welcome and special. She is the happiest when she is comforting others in looking after their needs. People also have a special place in their hearts for her as well, as she is refined and one could almost say elegant. She is resourceful and nurturing and will help or guide those less fortunate than herself. She is practical and sensible and is not one to fuss over things and if needed will make do with very little when ever she is in a pinch.
